Table of Contents

Preface xi

Acknowledgments xiii

1 Introduction 1

1.1 Governing through clubhouses: a 180-degree turn 1

1.2 Raising barriers 3

1.3 International responses to outlaw motorcycle gangs 5

1.3.1 Europe 6

1.3.2 Canada 8

1.3.3 Australia 9

1.4 A ‘risk factor’ to be prevented 11

1.5 Setting the stage: the pre-crime society 13

1.6 Research question 18

1.7 Discussing methods 20

1.7.1 Choosing sides 20

1.7.2 The government 22

1.7.3 Taking a social constructivist view 23

1.7.4 Discussing data: triangulation 24

1.7.5 Discussing analysis 36

1.8 Some early reflections and limitations 38

1.8.1 The downside of a hot topic 39

1.8.2 Reflecting on the data and analysis 40

1.9 Overview of the book 42

2 Raising barriers to crime 45

2.1 Introduction 45

2.2 The birth of prevention in the Netherlands 46

2.3 Changing criminologies 48

2.3.1 Welfarist criminology 49

2.3.2 Nothing works 50

2.3.3 Criminologies of everyday life 51

2.4 Situational crime prevention 54

2.4.1 Beyond the criminal justice system 56

2.4.2 A crime-specific approach 57
Table of Contents

2.4.3 An amoral approach 58
2.5 Towards the prevention of organized crime 59
2.5.1 A threat to society 60
2.5.2 Van Traa-Committee and the Organized Crime Monitor 61
2.5.3 The Amsterdam project 64
2.6 Tegenhouden 67
2.7 A program-based approach to organized crime 69
2.7.1 Raising barriers 72
2.7.2 Raising barriers to organized hemp cultivation 74
2.8 Pre-crime and raising barriers 80

3 The history of the outlaw motorcycle gang 83
3.1 Introduction 83
3.2 From motorcycle clubs to outlaw motorcycle clubs 84
3.2.1 The first motorcycle (club) 84
3.2.2 The ‘outlawed’ motorcycle clubs 85
3.3 From outlaw motorcycle clubs to 1%-motorcycle clubs 87
3.3.1 The gypsy tour in Hollister 88
3.3.2 The media response to the Hollister event 89
3.3.3 Threatening norms and values 92
3.3.4 Exploiting the image of the ‘outlaw biker’ 93
3.3.5 The 1% and the 99% 95
3.4 From 1%-motorcycle clubs to outlaw motorcycle gangs 96
3.4.1 The Hells Angels Motorcycle Club 96
3.4.2 The Lynch-report 98
3.4.3 Introducing the ‘gang’-label 100
3.4.4 Outlaw motorcycle gangs 102

4 Facilitating the Hells Angels MC 105
4.1 Introduction 105
4.2 The emergence of youth culture 106
4.2.1 The nozems, dijkers and pleiners 108
4.2.2 The provo’s and the police 110
4.3 The first Hells Angels in the Netherlands 111
4.3.1 ‘Terrorizing’ Amsterdam 113
4.3.2 Disrupting youth work 115
4.3.3 Explaining aggressive behaviour 118
4.4 Towards a responsive approach 120
4.4.1 The rationale behind a new clubhouse 122
4.4.2 A multi-agency experiment 124
4.4.3 Avoiding media attention 128
4.4.4 Assessing complaints and weighing risks 129
4.4.5 Making exceptions 133
4.4.6 An exceptional and controversial measure 134
4.4.7 The Hells Angels as a trusted discussion partner 136
4.5 Recognized as an MC 138
4.6 Facilitating the Hells Angels MC 139

5 Towards a national priority on outlaw motorcycle gangs 143
5.1 Introduction 143
5.2 Losing grip 144
5.3 Tolerating the Hells Angels MC 146
5.4 Zooming in on the Hells Angels MC 148
5.5 Managing public order 151
  5.5.1 The 20th anniversary of the Hells Angels MC 152
  5.5.2 Guiding a funeral procession 155
5.6 The turning of the tide 157
  5.6.1 The eyesore of a funeral 157
  5.6.2 Killings, violence and weapons 162
  5.6.3 Fighting a public image 163
5.7 The turn of the tide 165
  5.7.1 Acronym 165
  5.7.2 Angel Place: stopping negotiations 167
  5.7.3 Safe havens and reclaiming authority 169
5.8 Outlawing the Hells Angels MC 174
  5.8.1 No place for the Hells Angels MC 174
  5.8.2 The ‘criminal character’ of the Hells Angels MC 176
  5.8.3 The verdict of the civil court 178
5.9 Disappointment and restraint 180
5.10 Towards a national priority on outlaw motorcycle gangs 182
  5.10.1 Tensions in the ‘biker scene’ 183
  5.10.2 Taking no risks 186
  5.10.3 A national priority 187
  5.10.4 From ‘1%-motorcycle club’ to ‘outlaw motorcycle gang’ 189

6 The problem of outlaw motorcycle gangs 193
6.1 Introduction 193
6.2 A multi-dimensional problem 194