This study has been prepared by a team organized under the auspices of the Netherlands Economic Institute Division of Balanced International Growth. The team was headed by Jan Tinbergen, professor of development planning at the Netherlands School of Economics, and included the following members:

Deputy Research Director: Hans Linnemann, M.A., member of the teaching staff of the Netherlands School of Economics, Rotterdam, and senior member of the research staff of the Netherlands Economic Institute in charge of the current organization and supervision of the project;

Dr. Aleida van Oven, economist with N. V. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken, Eindhoven, temporarily attached to the Netherlands Economic Institute;

Hendrikus M. L. Oudendijk, M.A., economist, formerly with the Royal Dutch Shell Group of Companies, temporarily attached to the Netherlands Economic Institute;

Peter A. Cornelisse, junior economist;

Hendrik E. Chin, junior economist;

Hisao Massaki, visiting junior economist;

Chikao Tsukuda, visiting junior economist;

and, as Special Advisers:

Dr. Floor Hartog, professor of economics at the State University of Groningen;

Dr. Henri Rijken van Olst, professor of statistics and econometrics at the State University of Groningen.
Preface

Most of the main text was written by Dr. Tinbergen, while a number of specialized sections and the appendices were written by Dr. van Oven, Dr. Hartog, Dr. Rijken van Olst, Mr. Oudendijk, and Mr. Linnemann. Twenty-four developing countries were visited by various members of the group (reports on these trips are included in the appendices). Our sincere thanks are due to the many government officials and independent experts who were willing to inform us about their country's and region's economic problems. The active help received during these visits is greatly appreciated.

Our thanks are extended also to Mrs. Maud Fonteyn-Robinson of the Economic Information Service, the Hague, and to the staff of the GATT Secretariat, Geneva, for providing us with detailed information about tariffs and other trade restrictions; to the staff of the Dr. Neher Laboratory of the PTT, Leidschendam, for their cooperation in performing the computations for Appendix VI; and to Mrs. Suze van Willigenburg for typing the manuscript.

We are grateful to Mr. Philip M. Ginsberg for the preliminary editing job he was kind enough to undertake, to Professor Alfred H. Conrad of Harvard University, this year visiting professor at the Netherlands School of Economics, who supervised this first editing, and to Mrs. Katharine Beyer for her skillful editing of the final manuscript.

To the Trustees of the Twentieth Century Fund and to Messrs. August Heckscher and Ben T. Moore, Director and Associate Director, respectively, of the Fund, we wish to express our deep gratitude for their encouragement and help as well as for the Fund's generosity in financing this project.

Jan Tinbergen