- Contrast agent differs fundamentally from tissue. Detection methods for contrast agent need to differ from imaging methods for tissue as well. (this thesis)
- Coded excitation improves the signal-to-noise ratio and the contrast-to-tissue ratio, but fails in the practice-to-theory ratio. (this thesis)
- Detection methods based on system theoretic principles are more powerful. (this thesis)
- Dual frequency exposure allows for real-time tracking of reversible changes in the physical properties of a contrast agent bubble. (this thesis)
- Bubbles remember the past. This may be fruitful for the future. (this thesis)
- The cardinality of the set of un-researched topics is much larger than the cardinality of the set of researched topics. Therefore, answering is more difficult than questioning.
- At the end of the 19th century a battle was fought among adults that resulted in a separate class for children and young adolescents, established a right for education and freed them from working. In this light, it is remarkable that nowadays young adolescents crave to get a job and dress like adults.
- For violin players, G-sharp \neq A-flat.
- The term 'social engineering' shows that social sciences and engineering can go together. Unfortunately, this term is best known in the computer hacking scene.
- One of the things irreversibly lost in adolescence is an open and innocent view into the world. All scientists should have children.
- De binnenkant van de poes zit aan de buitenkant van de poes.
