

Geerte M. Savenije studied history at the Radboud University in Nijmegen, the Netherlands, and French modern history at the University Francois-Rabelais in Tours, France. Savenije graduated cum laude in cultural history and completed a second Master's degree in teaching history at the Graduate School of Education at the Radboud University. Savenije worked as a history teacher educator at the University of Applied Sciences in Amsterdam. Currently, she works as a postdoctoral researcher at the Research Institute of Child Development and Education of the University of Amsterdam continuing her research in the learning of history.